While Jax's presence would have produced huge symbolic vibes, there's also the entertainment value to consider. With his mystery quips and condescending style, Jackson would bring a more theatrical presence to the proceedings. Especially if his foil, Jeff (Shecky) Van Gundy, was working the show for ESPN.

Twitter, the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) and others had urged the 9th Circuit to side with Google. Twitter argued that copyright law does not require service providers to monitor for all possible infringements. The ACLU said the case involved the public's right to access and view a video central to a political debate.
