The Shell-BG deal was most probably motivated by the desire to build on assets in liquefied natural gas (LNG), particularly in Australia where BG already has an operating coal seam to LNG plant on the east coast, and Shell effectively has stranded gas reserves after it deferred a decision to build its own plant.

Of course, these figures still don't reflect the makeup of the population: to accurately mirror the UK, half the MPs in Parliament should be female, and while 6.6 per cent of the Commons are BAME, the BAME population in the UK is 14.1 percent.

They believe Vodafone should be well placed to reap the rewards after it embarked on a program called Project Spring which was designed to bolster its mobile speeds and either build or buy superfast fixed-line broadband networks.

"The Syrian government denies holding Austin Tice, but we believe that it has the ability, it can do a lot, so that Austin Tice returns home safe and sound," Reporters Without Borders Secretary-General Christophe Deloire told a news conference.

Attorneys general from three dozen U.S. states had raised objections to the RadioShack sale, in part because they said it was unclear what consumer information was being sold and how it would be used.

Paul has made civil liberties a cornerstone of his unorthodox presidential bid, arguing that his fellow Republicans are not doing enough to protect constitutionally guaranteed rights to privacy and justice.

The Commission said it was looking at whether traders in these banks worked together through electronic messaging platforms to coordinate their trading activities when quoting customers who buy or sell currencies.

A weaker euro allows the 1 trillion euro asset-purchase programme to feed through into higher inflation and stronger growth in the euro zone. But having traded as low as $1.0457 in March, the single currency has since gained almost 10 percent to hit $1.1468 late last week, lifted by rapid rises in euro zone bond yields.

Cases of acute diarrhea and cholera have been confirmed among the refugees, and experts who assessed the situation have recommended emergency measures to ensure a timely response in the Kigoma region near the border with Burundi, according to WHO.
At the same time, Shi'ite militias, some loyal to the Iraqi government and others loyal to Iran, have been converging on the outskirts of Ramadi, seeming to answer a call for support from Iraqi Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi, who met Monday with Iranian Defense Minister Gen. Hossein Dehghan.

Nothing trumps the need for people to be careful, truthful and responsible when it comes to their intimate relationships. But we're long past the days when fear and panic spread faster than the disease itself.

Consumer prices across the 19-country euro zone rose 0.2 percent month-on-month while core inflation, which excludes energy and unprocessed food, was 0.2 percent for the month of April, and 0.7 percent year-on-year.

LONDON, May 19 (Reuters) - Brent crude oil fell below $66 a barrel on Tuesday as the dollar strengthened and on evidence of ample supplies of Middle Eastern oil despite wars in northern Iraq, Syria and Yemen.

A part seemed to break about 50 minutes into practice and the Canadian driver spun hard into the wall. As his car slid back down toward the apron, it briefly slid on its right side and almost flipped before coming to rest upright.

If Orkambi is approved, it would be the first medicine to treat patients aged 12 or older with the most common form of cystic fibrosis, known as F508del. Researchers hope it will also increase the survival rate.

A witness to the wondrous save ran to a parking lot to call 911. Two rangers rescued the fallen photographer by setting up a ropes and pulleys system to send a harnessed emergency responder down and bringing the man back up to safety. It took more than a dozen park employees to pull off the save.

The Patriots owner also didn’t get into why his team suspended John Jastremski and McNally — club employees who played a role in DeflateGate, according to the Wells Report.
— or whether he would take the league to court to get the penalties overturned.
