“Google is operating in an unfair and deceptive way and we’ve documented this in a number of cases, so we expect the commission to require Google to change a number of its practices on the app,” said Jeff Chester, executive director for the CDD. “This is a digital deja vu — any time there’s a new market, the industry wants to push it because there are no rules. And there have to be some rules for children.”

The moves were compounded as France’s central bank governor Christian Noyer, also an ECB member, said the bank was "ready to go further if necessary" with its easing measures, and came amid another mixed set of European data.

Mara is impressive as the younger women transfixed by the older socialite, who leaves a pair of gloves behind during their first meeting at a department store. At one point during their exchange, Blanchett remarks on Mara’s oddness saying she seems to have fallen from space.

The company said on Tuesday profit on a proforma basis, as it moves from a calendar fiscal year to an early April year-end, fell 6 percent, as expected, to 131 million pounds ($205 million) on sales down 4.5 percent, adding trade was improving.
Cooper says that, while some clients have asked about drones, none have chosen a different photographer just because that is not something he offers. Instead, he says, they are impressed with the low-tech aerial shots he gets with a remote-controlled camera that can be mounted with suction cups, attached to a monopod and held overhead, or hooked onto a decoration. He uses his iPhone to see through the viewfinder and take the pictures.
